FOUNTAIN ABBY BY STEVE LIGHTLE DUE TO HORIZONAL FORMAT OF THIS PICTURE THE COVER WHICH IS PRESENTED IN VERTICAL FORMAT CAUSED SOME OF THE BUILDING TO BE CUT (editor)

Fountains Abbey, Yorkshire, England

Part of our recent travel adventure to England was spent in the town of York where we rented a car and driver for a day. The day trip included a visit to Fountains Abbey and Studley Royal which is located about 25 miles northwest of York (English midlands). Fountains Abbey is a world heritage site and the largest monastic ruin in Britain. It was constructed in 1132 by Benedictine monks and 'closed' by Henry the VIII in 1539.

The image was made at mid day with a Canon 40D, Canon 28-135 IS zoom, ISO 250, F8, 197th of a second. Adjustments were for levels, contrast and sharpness. This is a public park with lots of visitors and I waited patiently for quite a while (as did Diana) until everyone had walked out of the picture frame before I clicked the shutter. Even then I still got a person's head in the right hand shadow are but a little cloning took care of that.

2012 Ghost Town - Yellowstone - Grand Tetons Photo Adventure

September 2012 found Pilchuck Camera Club members exploring ghost towns in Montana (Comet, Elk Horn and Bannack) along with Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks. The ghost towns provide lots of nostalgic photo opportunities with abandoned buildings and abandoned cars. Yellowstone is a destination of anticipation... will we find wildlife around the next bend? Will we see a moose? Wolf? or Bear? We were successful in seeing deer, bison, antelope and elk... maybe just a bit too close to the elk (but that's another story). Yellowstone also provides an opportunity for landscapes, waterfalls and an intimate look at geysers, paint pots and fumaroles. Grand Teton also provides an opportunity to photograph wildlife and we were fortunate enough to see coyotes, antelope, moose and beavers there although the moose were buried deep in the willow and it was after dusk when we saw the beavers so I don't believe anyone got any quality shots of either of them. But the big photographic draw in Grand Teton is Mormon Row (with the Tetons in the background) and classic landscapes from Oxbow Bend (an Ansel Adams location) and Schwabacker's Landing (oh it was cold that morning). Steve

Sonya:

This was taken in Bannack State Park. Here you see me making my escape while Jim remains confined in the Bannack jail.

Self timer, f 5.0, 1/40, fill flash.

Kevin:

This detail in a hot spring runoff channel in the Black Sand Basin covers an area about 4 inches wide but looks like something seen under the microscope. Totally immersed in a search for abstract images in an area of only about 2 square feet with a 300mm lens and a 36mm extension tube, I felt like a kid at play.

I like images that evoke a sense of solitude. This image falls into that category and is one of my favorite images from the trip.

Jerry:

Steve did a great job at not only planning out our trip to Yellowstone but also did all the driving. I thought nine days would be too long of a trip with four people and their camera gear and luggage but I found there was so much to see that nine days was not long enough. We really had a good group of photographers and really enjoyed their company. Thanks Steve for a job well done.

Jim:

I like this picture because of the colors in the formation and the thought of how many thousands of years it probably took to get to this size.

Sharon:

Our morning at Schwbacher Landing was magic. By seeing only the reflection of the Tetons you have to imagine the rest of the image. The autumn grasses still have morning dew, and there may be a bit of ground fog at the water's edge.

Hard to walk away...
